Housing has come a long way from the basic shared spaces of ancient civilizations to modern co-living options. It has evolved in response to changing needs and aspirations of societies, reflecting the dynamic nature of human culture. Today, community housing is a lifestyle choice that fosters a sense of belonging, social interaction, and shared responsibility.

As human civilization continues to advance, we can expect to see new and innovative forms of community housing. The psychology of development of community housing is shaped by the fundamental human need for social interaction and a sense of belonging. As the world becomes more interconnected, technological advancements are likely to play an increasingly important role in shaping the future of community housing.

Experts hold an optimistic view, believing that these advancements will bring significant improvements to areas such as healthcare, transportation, and communication. Also some experts hold a pessimistic view, cautioning about potential adverse effects such as heightened inequality and social turmoil.

The Challenge!

The future of housing presents us with a range of Thrilling opportunities and challenges. The development of sustainable and approachable housing solutions, promoting social interaction, and harnessing the power of technology will be key to creating a vibrant and prosperous future for communities worldwide.

As a designer, your challenge is to create future housing for the year 2075 which should meet the requirement of 150 households. This housing community must be the result of gradual and Strategic evolution
Designing a housing for the year 2075 requires a forward-thinking and purposeful approach. By anticipating future trends and developments, we can create a space that is socially enriching and environmentally responsible.

There are no limitations on the site selection, it is an opportunity to explore a wide range of locations, each with its own unique benefits and challenges.

Judging!

Anticipation

Imagining the future in a viable manner while considering all possible outcomes of changes and identifying reasonable solutions to address them.

Innovation
